

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

My cell phone is my life!

Learning Outcome

Understand detailed descriptions of real or imaginary events and experiences in present, past or future and in spoken or written texts.

Ask your partner:

- How do you feel when people use cell phones when they are out with you?
- How often do you tune out of a conversation and tune into information on your phone when you are out?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about technology and personal dilemmas.
- I can express events that will be happening at a future point.
- I can talk about imaginary future situations.

Let's Explore!

The artist will be taking note of how we interact.

* When you "take note", you pay attention.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

If you were to stand in a crowded area and watch the people, what would you see? If you were to stand close to people, what would you hear? If you were to compare a picture of people on the street today with those taken 25 years ago, what would you notice? If you understood the difference could you explain how it happened?

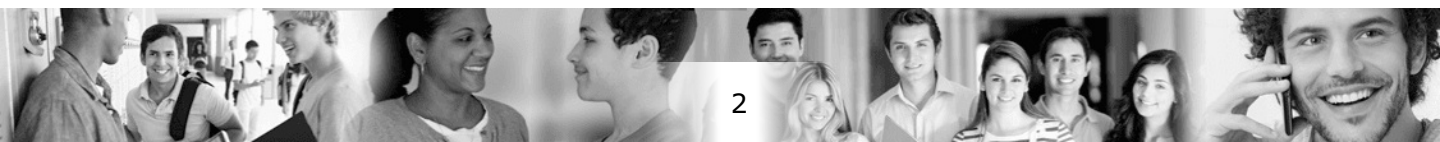

Tonight the Now Gallery will be displaying art documenting "The Death of Conversation". You don't need to forward this to me, I'll be going there anyway. I'll be the one standing in a corner watching the rest of you. While you're looking at the art - that is, if you really are looking at the art - I'll be taking note of how you interact.

Stationary cameras, mounted on the wall, will be recording people talking, texting, tweeting, posting, or taking selfies. This in turn will be feeding into large viewing screens at either end of the gallery.

What is the exhibit about? If you knew how seriously dull people were today, you would get it immediately! How sad we are! The images captured show how we look to devices, rather than to the people we are with. How long will those caught immersed in their phones remain there before they raise their heads and verbally connect?

If you were at this exhibit but didn't remember it until you revisited your social media, then perhaps you, like the people on the walls are overconnected.

I took an online test to see where I stood compared to others in regards to being connected to the net. My meager rating of 22% said I had more time for things outside of cyberspace and preferred to connect face to face. Where do you stand?

Let's Practice!

Someone's trying to create eye-opening* art work!

*You refer to something as "eye-opening" when it provides sudden knowledge about something.

Instructions: Match the halves to correctly complete the sentences. Read the sentences aloud. Check your pronunciation with your instructor.

- | | |
|--|--|
| 1. Tonight the Now Gallery | a. talking, texting, tweeting, posting, or taking selfies. |
| 2. You don't need to forward this to me, | b. will be displaying art documenting "The Death of Conversation". |
| 3. While you're looking at the art | c. I'll be taking note of how you interact. |
| 4. Stationary cameras will be recording people | d. I'll be going there anyway. |
| 5. This in turn will be feeding into | e. large viewing screens at either end of the gallery. |

Let's Practice!

What conclusion would you draw with this experiment?

Instructions: Choose the option that best completes the statement. Read the sentences aloud. Check your pronunciation with your instructor.

- | | |
|---|---|
| 1) If you were to stand in a crowded area and watch the people, what _____ see? | 4) If you _____ how seriously dull people were today, you would get it immediately! |
| a. do you | a. know |
| b. would you | b. to know |
| c. will you | c. knew |
| 2) _____ compare pictures of people on the street today with those taken 25 years ago, what would you notice? | 5) If you _____ stand close to people, what _____ you hear? |
| a. If you were to | a. would |
| b. If you are to | b. were to |
| c. If you will be | c. was to |
| 3) If you understood the difference, _____ explain how it happened? | |
| a. you | |
| b. could you | |
| c. do you | |

Extension Activity

Write observations about people on their cellphones.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- As you go through your week, observe people's behavior while using their cellphones, especially when they are in groups.
- Write short notes describing what you see and whether the people are interacting with each other or not.
- Do this 3 or 4 times.
- Use your notes to talk about the way people interact in groups and the influence of electronic devices among them.
- State what you think will be happening in the future.
- Talk about imaginary future situations.
- Read your descriptions to a partner.

Self-Assessment

Yes

No

I write short notes describing people in groups.

☐ ☐

I use notes to describe interaction among people.

☐ ☐

I share my description with a partner.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- to forward (verb): to send on e.g. You don't need to forward this to me, I'll be going there anyway.
- to interact (verb): communicate and react with others
e.g. I'll be taking note of how you interact.
- stationary (adjective): not moving
e.g. Stationary cameras, mounted on the wall, will be recording people talking, texting, tweeting, posting, or taking selfies.
- to mount (verb): attach to a wall
e.g. Stationary cameras, mounted on the wall, will be recording people talking, texting, tweeting, posting, or taking selfies.
- dull (adjective): not interesting or exciting
e.g. If you knew how seriously dull people were today, you would get it immediately!
- verbally (adverb): express using oral communication
e.g. How long will those caught immersed in their phones remain there before they raise their heads and verbally connect?
- meager (adjective): very small in amount or number e.g. My meager rating of 22% said I had more time for things outside of cyberspace and preferred to connect face to face.
- cyberspace (noun): an electronic system that allows computer users around the world to communicate or access information e.g. I have more time for things outside of cyberspace and preferred to connect face to face.

Learning Points

Future Continuous Tense

You use the Future Continuous tense to talk about something happening at a particular time in the future.

The action will have started before that time in the future, but it will not be finished at that moment.

The Future Continuous describes an event which will be happening at a future point.

Example:

Tonight the Now Gallery will be displaying art documenting "The Death of Conversation".

It can also describe events which are going to happen anyway, rather than events which we choose to make happen.

Example:

You don't need to forward this to me, I'll be going there anyway.

It can also be used to refer to fixed arrangements and plans.

Example:

Stationary cameras will be recording people talking, texting, tweeting, posting, or taking selfies.

Examples:

- I'll be the one standing in a corner watching the rest of you.
- While you're looking at the art - that is if you really are looking at the art - I'll be taking note of how you interact.
- This in turn will be feeding into large viewing screens at either end of the gallery.

Learning Points

Unreal Conditional: Expressing Imaginary Future Situations

You use the Unreal Conditional to express imaginary or future situations.

You use the structure If ... were + to + infinitive to express a hypothetical future situation that is unlikely to happen.

The Present Unreal Conditional is also called the Second Conditional.

You use the structure:

If ... Simple Past, ... would + verb or

Would + verb ... if ... Simple Past.

Example:

If you understood the difference between these two pictures, would you be able to explain it to me?

It is unclear whether I know the difference between the two pictures, so the outcome is impossible to predict.

You use If ... were + to + infinitive to talk about imaginary future situations, especially when it is not likely the situation will happen.

Example:

If you were to stand in a crowded area and watch the people, what would you see?

Examples:

- If you were to stand close to people, what would you hear?
- If you were to compare a picture of people on the street today with those taken 25 years ago, what would you notice?
- If you knew how seriously dull people were today, you would understand my point immediately!

